INTRODUCTORY.

The committee entered upon their duties with many misgivings as to their ability to discharge acceptably the important trust committed to them. Having, however, with considerable labor, gathered our materials from a variety of authentic sources and moulded them into their present form, we offer them to the public.

Those who look for a volume that shall possess all the salient beauties of stirring romance, and are prepared to be satisfied with nothing short, we entreat to shut the book, for they cannot be gratified.

To those on the other hand, who are prepared to be interested in anything pertaining to the brave band who went out from among us to aid in the defense of our country in its greatest peril; who would learn of the different arms of the service in which they were severally employed, and the locality and duration of that service, we trust these pages may not prove wholly uninteresting.

The Chairman of this Committee gladly avails himself of this opportunity to acknowledge his obligation to Adjutant-General Schouler, and his Clerk, Mr. Allen, for the promptness with which they have uniformly responded to every inquiry; thus putting him in possession of valuable information at a time most serviceable. Also, to his successor, General Cunningham, for like courtesies.

He has likewise received numerous favors from the Town Clerk's of various towns, to whom he would also tender sincere thanks.

Claiming that the facts herein contained are authentic, and regretting profoundly that we have not been able to dispose them in better array, we introduce the reader to the following pages.

The second and last draft in Massachusetts, commenced in June 1864, for deficiencies under the call of March 14th, 1864, for two hundred thousand men.

Massachusetts drafted nine thousand five hundred and five. Of these one hundred and five were held to personal service; seven hundred and forty-three furnished substitutes, and one thousand six hundred and fifteen paid commutation.

Eleven were drafted from Southboro', viz; Charles M. Buck, Oscar B. Buck, Francis P. Brown, Samuel F. Fay, Samuel Taft, Alfred H. Jones, David R. Huntly, Edward McKnight, George H. Houghton, G. L. Temple, and John C. Nichols.

The citizens, by contribution, succeeded early in raising a fund sufficient to procure a number of volunteers equal to the quota of this town; accordingly those parties whose names appear above were not called upon to report.

Subsequently the town assumed the entire expense, together with the amount raised by subscription to procure volunteers to fill other quotas, amounting in all to seven thousand three hundred and twenty seven dollars, and it fell, pro rata, upon soldier and citizen. All who had contributed to the above fund received back the full measure of their contributions.

Prior to all this, other parties had been drafted, and had responded to the draft, one with a substitute, eleven by commutation, amounting in the aggregate to thirty-seven hundred dollars. These parties were not exempt when the previous tax was levied. There has been no equalization of the amount paid by them, so that an extra and a very heavy pecuniary burden fell upon this class alone.

Of those persons who had enlisted into the United States Navy, without naming any City or Town as their residence, the following were allotted to Southboro', by the Navy Commissioners, viz:

George O. Allen, Arthur A. Henry, William H. Smith, Thomas Shadwick, Charles Smith, Hiram Storer, Jeremiah Shemnaham, Frederick Scarlett, Frederick A. Smart, Joseph Staples, Timothy Toomey, ——— Taskett, Leroy L. Walden.

NOTE.—Should any discrepancy appear in the foregoing record upon comparing the same with that of the Adjutant-General, we would simply state that we have had reference to original papers and to the parties themselves for confirmation, always preferring the former to any other authority.

The ladies of Southboro' organized a Soldiers Aid Society the 27th of August 1862. It numbered eighty-two members. Meetings were held once a week down to the close of the war. Money was raised at various times by voluntary subscription, and by sundry other methods. Two thousand two hundred and thirty-seven different articles of apparel were duly forwarded by this society. There were 205 pairs of socks; of flannel shirts 316; drawers 72 pairs; handkerchiefs 556; towels 659, besides cotton shirts, mittens, slippers, gloves, slings, and a quantity of clothing and articles for hospital use. A large quantity of bedding was likewise transmitted, such as quilts, blankets, sheets, and bed-sacks.

This society also forwarded at various times, groceries, canned fruits, apples and vegetables.

Early in 1861, the ladies made up a large quantity of flannel and presented it to the volunteers of this town for the purpose of furnishing them thorough out-fits for the exposures of the camp.

In 1863, there was an urgent call in behalf of the seamen, for fruits and vegetables.

This call was promptly responded to by the farmers of this town. Not less than one hundred dollars worth was immediately contributed and forwarded to the proper authorities.

The value of all the above contributions could not be less than two thousand dollars.

SOLDIERS' MONUMENT AT SOUTHBORO'.

SOLDIERS' MONUMENT.

“ Early in the year of our Lord, eighteen hundred and sixty-five, Mr. Henry H. Peters a public spirited citizen of Southboro’ offered five hundred dollars towards building a Memorial Soldiers’ monument, upon condition that an equal amount should be subscribed by other citizens of the town.

The offer was promptly accepted and upwards of one thousand dollars in addition were pledged for that purpose. Messrs. Joseph Burnett, Jonas Fay and S. N. Thompson, were appointed a Committee to carry forward the work to completion.

The monument is of Fitzwilliam granite, and was built by E. F. Meany, of Boston, from a design by A. R. Esty, Esq. It is twenty feet high ; sits on two bases, above which is the die bearing the names of the heroes. At the top of the die begins the shaft, in octagonal form, with gables on each of the cardinal sides ; the whole terminating in a graceful obelisk. On the first base, which is five feet square, is given the date of erection. On the second, four feet square, are inscribed ; on the front side, the south, ‘Erected by Citizens of Southborough ;’ on the east, ‘In Memoriam ;’ on the north, ‘Our Country’s Defenders ;’ and on the west, ‘Rebellion 1861.’

The names of those to whose memory the monument has been erected, are arranged according to the branches of service to which they belonged. The die is capped on the four faces by representations of the emblems of the four branches,—Infantry, Cavalry, Artillery, and Navy.

The following are the names of those who have died in service of their country, and which are inscribed on the monument.

W. E. BUCK, 20th Regiment. P. H. CLEARY, 13th Regiment.
 O. EDWARD, 1st Regiment. H. L. FAY, 20th Regiment.
 E. A. FREDERICK, 56th Reg't. F. A. GOULD, 13th Regiment.

 C. H. WOODS, 1st Regiment. C. F. FISHER, 3d Cavalry.

M. J. BURDITT, 4th Heavy Artillery.

The dedication of this exceedingly neat and appropriate cenotaph was solemnly and impressively performed on the first day of January, A. D. 1867; and notwithstanding the unsettled state of the weather and the hard travelling, a very large concourse of people assembled in the Orthodox Church to witness the interesting ceremonies. The alcove over the pulpit was overhung with American flags in graceful festoons, while on either side, on a white ground bordered with evergreen, were tablets upon which were inscribed the names of the seventeen fallen heroes.

At the appointed hour, eleven o'clock, the services commenced by the singing the hymn "Loved ones rest." The Rev. Mr. Colby, Pastor of the society, then read the 68th Psalm and offered prayer. After these opening exercises, Mr. Burnett for the Committee, made a brief report, and introduced Mr. William P. Wilson, who read a brief history of the seventeen men who had died in their country's service. Samuel Appleton Esq., the Orator of the day, was next introduced and delivered an address which occupied nearly an hour, and held the large audience in perfect accord and sympathy.

Appropriate music followed. Maj. Gen. Gordon was next called upon, and made an excellent and most effective extempore speech.

The following letter from Governor Bullock was then read.

COMMONWEALTH OF MASSACHUSETTS,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT, Boston Dec. 31st, 1866. }

MY DEAR SIR:—I have received your kind invitation to participate in an interesting and solemn ceremonial, and deeply regret that public duties, so urgent at this season, deprive me alike of the honor and the privilege. For I confess that it would afford me peculiar pleasure to aid, in any appropriate way, in the dedication of this early and generous tribute to the gallant dead of my native county.

With intelligent liberality, your citizens have erected a ‘Soldier’s Monument;’ but those in whose honor it is reared, have passed beyond the domain of praise. In the smoke of battle, or on the couch of lingering pain, for their friends and for their country they have gone home to God.

But through your considerate care, each ‘being dead yet speaketh;’ for this name engraved on the enduring stone of that structure your hands have builded shall complete the true idea of a monument; not only reminding, but teaching by example, and inspiring others with patriotic impulses to heroic deeds.

Not alone in your pleasant village, but through every hamlet, and in every valley of the country, so dear to me by birth and associations, there is mourning for the departed. For never in the late fearful struggle was the Flag of our Country so far advanced, but the young men of Worcester [County?] rallied and died around it. In too many a home there is the cry of those who will not be comforted. My warmest sympathies are with you and them, and while the lasting granite and the faithful marble perpetuate the memory of the dead, let us with equal persistence and fidelity execute the legacy they have trustingly bequeathed to us—the kindest care of their widows and fatherless.

With the highest regard, I am Dear Sir:

Yours most truly,

ALEX. H. BULLOCK.

To Dr. Joseph Burnett, Chairman, &c., Southboro’, Mass.

Mr. Burnett called upon Rev. Mr. Whitney, who responded in a brief and appropriate manner, giving some interesting details of his experience among the soldiers of the army.

At the conclusion of his remarks, the congregation and choir united in closing the exercises of this very interesting occasion by singing ‘America.’ ”

"Of the number of troops mustered into the United States service for a less period than six months (including all three-months men), not heretofore credited on any quota since the commencement of the Rebellion, but which would have been proper credit upon any subsequent call, in accordance with provisions of section 15 of acts of March 3d, 1865, Massachusetts furnished 4983 for three months; 6809 for one hundred days; and 121 for four months. Total, 11,913; equal to 3157 years of service; or 1052 men for three years."

SUMMARY.

Southboro', with a population of about eighteen hundred inhabitants, has furnished for the Army and Navy, during the Rebellion, two hundred and six men, besides the thirteen that were allotted to her by the Navy Commissioners; being equal to one to every nine of her inhabitants. She filled every call of the President for volunteers, and had a surplus at the close of the war, nearly equal to her quota for six hundred thousand men, — there being thirty-three.

The following table will show the number of years, months, and days of service; also the average in each quota:—

Number of Quota.	No. of Men.	Time in Service.			Average.
		Years.	Mos.	Days.	Years.	Mos.	Days.

The result is three hundred and two years, three months and ten days; averaging one year four months and eighteen days to each man; and equal to three hundred and two men for one year ; and nearly one hundred and one for three years of service each.

* We estimate the time for those serving for the drafted men, and those in the navy, at one year and six months respectively, as a fair average.

† We estimate the period of service of these men at one year each, they having enlisted early in 1864, and the war closing in the spring of 1865.

‡ An estimate.

Southboro' not only met every expense incurred during the war, but decreased the town debt about two thousand dollars ; it being $22,200.45 in 1861, and $20,424.65 at the close.

Her pauper expenses were likewise reduced about one thousand dollars ; there being $927.02 paid by the town for 1861, and for 1865 there was $60.45 paid into the town treasury. She in the mean time increased her school expenditure over three hundred dollars ; it being $2072.51 in 1861, and $2430.75 at the close of the war.

Before concluding this Record of the Soldiers of Southboro', we deem it our duty to make a single remark respecting the Chairman of this Committee.

Very early in the history of the Rebellion, our Chairman undertook the self-imposed task of collecting the names of all volunteers in and for this Town ; the date of birth of each, and the locality ; also the date of enlistment, muster in, and discharge ; together with some of the more prominent incidents connected with each period of service ; to the end that some authentic record might be preserved of our soldiers.

Without pausing to say that this task has been peculiarly arduous, as the materials were to be gathered from various sources, we would simply remark that he has nobly persevered in this important work, until his researches have been crowned with success.

The entire credit of collecting the facts herein contained, and their authenticity, we cheerfully award to him. Our share in this work has been mainly of an advisory character, but, we trust, not wholly unimportant.
