The Massachusetts Historical Commission (MHC) has converted this paper record to digital format as part of ongoing projects to scan records of the Inventory of Historic Assets of the Commonwealth and National Register of Historic Places nominations for Massachusetts. Efforts are ongoing and not all inventory or National Register records related to this resource may be available in digital format at this time.

The MACRIS database and scanned files are highly dynamic; new information is added daily and both database records and related scanned files may be updated as new information is incorporated into MHC files. Users should note that there may be a considerable lag time between the receipt of new or updated records by MHC and the appearance of related information in MACRIS. Users should also note that not all source materials for the MACRIS database are made available as scanned images. Users may consult the records, files and maps available in MHC's public research area at its offices at the State Archives Building, 220 Morrissey Boulevard, Boston, open M-F, 9-5.

Users of this digital material acknowledge that they have read and understood the MACRIS Information and Disclaimer (<http://mhc-macris.net/macrisdisclaimer.htm>)

ARCHITECTURAL DESCRIPTION ☐ see continuation sheet

Describe architectural, structural and landscape features and evaluate in terms of other areas within the community

Two late nineteenth century and one early to mid twentieth century dwellings located just south of the intersection of Woodland and Oregon Roads on Woodland Road are representative of small clusters of development on roads that connected the villages of Southborough. The three houses are the former intersection of Woodland Road with Breakneck Hill Road which was interrupted by the construction of the Massachusetts Turnpike, forming the short spur onto which 137 Woodland Road faces which now dead ends into a fence near the Pike (I-90). Each of the three dwellings has been altered with the application of inappropriate siding but retains its overall form, size and massing which are similar with the gable roof form, side hall entries and one and one-half or two and one-half story blocks.

MHC # 628 133 Woodland, ca. 1920s, rests on a stone and mortar foundation, has asbestos shingle siding and an asphalt roof. The two and one-half story house is two bays deep with six-over-six sash, shutters and a three-part window at the first story of the main facade. One chimney extends from the east roof slope near the rear of the house. There is a shed on dry laid stone with a single six-over-one window and a modern garage door. This building may be part of the late nineteenth century complex.

MHC #629 137 Woodland Road, ca. 1890s, rests on a stone foundation that has mortar and parging, has shingle siding and an asphalt roof. The two and one-half story house is three bays by four bays deep. Windows have six-over-one sash and narrow applied molding on the frame. Rafter ends are exposed and there is a flat verge board with pointed ends. There is a modest Colonial Revival open entrance porch at the sidehall entrance porch supported by round columns. On the south side there is an enclosed porch on mortared stone foundation. On the north side there is an enclosed entrance porch near the rear. Two rectangular stairhall windows with lattice muntins articulate part of the interior plan, namely the location of the stairs in relation to the entrance. The property has a large barn of molded cinder block with clapboards in the gable peak where there is a hay door with a diamond light cut into the vertical board door.

MHC #630 140 Woodland Road rests on a brick foundation with concrete under the side ell and porch. The ca. 1890s one and one-half story house has been covered with vinyl siding and windows also have been replaced with vinyl windows. This house displays a front gable form with a side gable ell. Hipped roof porches span the gable front and the side ell. The only remaining architectural details are the square columns with caps that support the full width porch of the main house and the boxed cornice and returns in the gable peak. The side ell has a full width screened porch with a solid balustrade, a wall dormer with two windows, and an exterior chimney on the south side.

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE ☐ see continuation sheet

Explain historical development of the area. Discuss how this relates to the historical development of the community.

Not until after 1830 was Woodland Road a through route connecting Fayville with Cordaville. However Breakneck Hill Road extended north from Woodland Road to the Turnpike Road before 1830. Only the short spur with two properties remains of the southern end of Breakneck Road as a result of the construction of the Massachusetts Turnpike in 1956. The Town Poor Farm was in the area of the Follensby farm in the mid-nineteenth century. From the 1890s there were two houses on the west side of this southern end of Breakneck Hill Road and one on the east side of Woodland Road of which 137 and 140 Woodland Road remain. Each was owned by a Follensby in 1898 and it is likely that the land on which 133 Woodland Road was constructed in the 1900s was part of the Follensby farms. In 1894 Francis A. Follensby (ca. 1824-1899) had a forty-three acre farm with a house, barn and toolhouse. By 1897 Lyman Follensby (1857-1920) was assessed for the forty-three acre farm, a house, barn, toolhouse, cottagehouse and livestock including 4 horses, two swine, and thirteen cows. Throughout the early 1900s Lyman and Richard Follensby both were farmers living on Woodland Road and in all likelihood were father and son. In 1909 Lyman Follensby was 52 years old and Richard Follensby was 25 years of age. Based on the assessors records, Lyman was a dairy farmer with 14 cows and Richard was listed as a poultryman having 140 chickens. Additional research is necessary to determine when the dwelling at 133 Woodland Road was added. All other houses in the area are post 1950s.
